

Drawing the Christmas Jumper

Painting, playing, being with our friends and learning are just some of the things we do at school every day. When there is a conflict and the grown-ups fight, children often cannot go to school because it is dangerous, or they have to leave their homes for other places where going to school is not always easy.

Let's send a big hug to those children who would like to go back to school to learn with their teachers and play with their friends with a big Christmas jumper.

Draw the outline of the Christmas Jumper on continuous paper (one of the boys or girls can stand and draw the outline on the paper). Each participant can write his or her name, decorate the jumper with Christmas motifs, or even write a message of peace.

With this big collaborative Christmas jumper, which all of you will have decorated and which you will hang in your classroom, you will send your support and affection in a symbolic embrace across borders to the children who are suffering the consequences of war.

Send us a picture of your Christmas jumper! We would love to share the image of your jumper so that many other schools can see it.

And now you can tell your families at home that you have made a big Christmas jumper and you can complete your own with the stickers.
